

The Blessing

May you always be blessed with events whose beauty you can see!

May the circumstances of your life bring you the very power and love that you so deserve!

May your life know first hand the gift that each moment offers you!

May you ever treasure each creation whether at first it feels bad or good!

Treasure it as a loving kiss of nature!

May the path of your life be always filled with the carriage or buggy of blessing and pulled by the horse of power!

May each event and moment invite you into yourself in ways that let you find yourself more fully!

May every condition of your life bring you the peace that already lives in your core!

May the divine and the divine source ever support your receptivity to its sublime invitations!

And may all the invitations of your life add up to one grand explosion of love that from this moment on, will fill your whole being with joy forever!

Bill Bauman